The International Adkins Chiti: Women in Music Foundation, which is a member of UNESCO's International Music Council and the European Music Council, came into being in 1978 as a movement promoting and presenting music composed or created by women worldwide, of all genres and in all times. Its network includes associations, universities, conservatoires and over 27,000 individual women in 108 countries who create music. The Foundation is currently running the WIMUST program: Women in Music Uniting Strategies for Talent, together with affiliate associations from its European Network, to endorse the 2009 European Parliamentary Resolution insisting on Equal Opportunities for women working in the arts and culture sectors, and to ensure that this Resolution is finally put into force by all European Governments.
